Mrs. Heiges, Visiting at the Home of her Son on Buford Street, Found Dead in Bed by her Little Grand-daughter. Funeral Sunday.

Mrs. H. F. Heiges, of Cashtown, was found dead in bed this morning at the home of her son, Clarence A. Heiges, on Buford street, where she had been visiting since last Saturday. She had intended to return home today.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Heiges and her daughter-in-law had been shopping in town and, during their trip, the elder Mrs. Heiges purchased a piano for her little grand-children to whom she was much attached. She was apparently in perfect health and spent a pleasant evening at the home on Buford street. It was not until eleven o'clock that the family retired. During the night Mrs. Heiges complained of not feeling well and she was given some medicine. As late as five o'clock this morning she was about the house and apparently not seriously ill.

Nothing was known of her sudden death until about eight o'clock when her little grand-daughter, Melva, went to her room to summon her to breakfast. She had then been dead for some little time. A physician was summoned who said that death had probably resulted from a stroke of paralysis.

Mrs. Heiges was born in this county, September 20, 1849 so that her age was 65 years, 3 months and 24 days. Her maiden name was Ellen C. Wolf. She was a step daughter of Levi Minter. In 1873 she married Hiram F. Heiges who died about a year ago. For thirty five years Mrs. Heiges conducted successfully an undertaking establishment at Cashtown and was tax collector of Franklin township for a time.

Mrs. Heiges was a member of Flohr's church and Sunday School for many years.

She leaves her only son, C. A. Heiges, of Gettysburg, and a step sister, Mrs. D. A. Mickle, Cashtown. Funeral on Sunday morning at 9 o'clock from her late home at Cashtown, Rev. D. T. Koser conducting the services.

FIRE CO. ELECTION

New Chief Chosen by Town Fire Laddies

Allan B. Plank was elected chief of the Gettysburg Fire Company at their annual election Wednesday evening, succeeding J. Clifford Wierman. Maurice A. Miller was chosen first assistant, and Moses Bair second assistant. Other officers chosen were, president, J. C. Hoke; vice president, J. E. Snyder; recording secretary, James B. Aumen; financial secretary, Horace Smiley; treasurer, Oscar Lupp.

The treasurer reported a balance in the relief fund of $1211.82, and in the general fund of $300.25. To raise further funds the company will soon put on a benefit play, "Incog", the plot being the same as "The Three Twins", but without the musical numbers of the latter show.

The company has issued invitations to its annual banquet which will be held on the evening of January 26 in the Independent Americans' Hall.

DIFFICULT WORDS

Spelling Contest this Year will be Severe Test.

County Superintendent Roth is distributing the books of a thousand words for this year's spelling contest. The words will be found generally much more difficult than those in last year's list. The preliminary contests will be held in the various schools on March 20 and the final contest will take place in the Court House on Saturday, April 3.

CASE LIKELY TO LAST SOME WEEKS

Cigar Smoke no Worse than Testimony in Will Matter Says Mrs. Ertter. Miss Runkel Suffering from Senile Dementia.

After hearing a number of witnesses in the Runkel will case Wednesday afternoon the matter was continued to a further hearing on January 21. It is probable that the sessions will be continued at intervals for several weeks.

John Tawney, a neighbor, was the first witness called in the afternoon and said he had known Miss Runkel for forty or fifty years, that in the several years before she was taken to the home of Mrs. Ertter, he noticed a great change in her and considered her unfit to care for herself or her affairs. For some years Mr. Tawney attended to her financial matters, collecting her dividends and paying her bills. Her carelessness with money, in letting it lying about the house, was mentioned.

Dr. Walter H. O'Neal told of knowing Miss Runkel for years and of a change in her physical and mental condition. In answer to questions from Mr. Hersh, Dr. O'Neal stated that she was "not insane but mentally incapacitated." "I think", Dr. O'Neal said, "that she was suffering from senile dementia to such an extent as to prevent the proper care of her body, and of her mind (by exercise)". The witness said Miss Runkel had told him while at Mrs. Ertter's home that she was treated well but always followed the remark by saying "I am going home this evening."

A. S. Mills, grocer, knew Miss Runkel for about four months prior to her removal from her own home and said she impressed him as having the mind of a child.

Harry S. Trostle, when called, stated that in former years he had had frequent conversations with Miss Runkel but that, for some time prior to her removal, she had not recognized him as he passed her. One evening he found her in front of her own home completely lost, and had quite a time convincing her that she was at her own residence. Mr. Trostle was the last witness heard for the day and adjournment was taken as noted.

During the course of the afternoon session Wednesday one of the attorneys asked Mrs. Ertter if she objected to cigar smoke.

"Oh no", she replied, "If I can stand some of the things I have heard here to-day I can stand that". Whereupon several drew out their cigars and proceeded with the case.

TWO FRACTURES

Little Boy Breaks Thigh and Dislocates his Hip.

A very serious accident occurred to George Wolf, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wolf, of McSherrystown, who fell on the ice sustaining two fractures of his right thigh and a dislocation of the hip. The little fellow makes his home with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Reed, and had just left the house a few minutes before the accident occurred. Dr. George L. Rice, assisted by Dr. A. C. Rice, reduced the fracture. The boy is resting as comfortably as can be expected to-day and displays a remarkable amount of nerve, notwithstanding the ordeal through which he passed.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE MEETING

Mrs. O'Neal to Attend Session in Philadelphia on Saturday.

Mrs. Walter H. O'Neal left for Philadelphia to-day where she will attend, by a personal invitation from Mrs. Horace Brock, State Chairman, a conference of women, opposed to the granting of suffrage to women. The meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Brock, 1920 Spruce street, on Friday morning. Mrs. A. J. George, of Boston, will be one of the speakers. After the meeting Mrs. Brock will serve a luncheon to the guests.

SAVE STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Effort to Withdraw Student Council is Defeated at Mass Meeting of College Boys. Grew out of Suspicion for Dishonesty.

An effort to abolish student government at Gettysburg College failed on Wednesday afternoon when a motion to withdraw the present student council was unanimously defeated.

The contention grew out of the suspension before the Christmas recess of two students for dishonesty in their work. The council had declined to take action in the matter and one of the men was suspended for the year by the faculty, who later, it is said declined to rescind this action. Considerable feeling arose among the students who felt that the punishment was more severe than the case merited, in view of other offenses of a like nature which were said to be numerous. A mass meeting was held but nothing definite done.

The student council explained that they had refused to take action because they were working out an honor system for the school and did not know, pending the completion of their work, what punishment should be meted the particular offenders.

Another mass meeting was called for Wednesday afternoon when the effort was made to recall the entire council. It was stated that the body had no initiative, that it was powerless, in important matters, and not accomplishing the purpose for which it was intended. Present and former members of the council rose to its defense, and in the course of their remarks it was claimed that the agitation against it was due in part to its efforts to get "free speech" in one of the college publications, a member of its staff being one of the leaders of the opposition.

So successfully did the champions of the council advance its cause that when the motion was put not one vote was cast to oust the council, and the body stays in power.

It is believed that this marks the end of the agitation relative to the recent suspensions.

STRAW RIDE

BADLY HURT IN THREE FOOT FALL

Mrs. John Deardorff Sustains a Broken Collarbone. Did not Know she was at End of Porch. Another Hurt in Fall from Horse.

In a three and a half foot fall from a porch at her home on Wednesday, Mrs. John A. Deardorff, of Center Mills, sustained a broken collar bone and a dislocated shoulder. The patient, who is 67 years of age, is suffering a great deal of pain.

Mrs. Deardorff has been afflicted for some time with failing eyesight and on Wednesday, while she was walking on the porch at her residence, did not notice that she was nearing the end. Suddenly she pitched forward with a great deal of force and fell heavily to the hard ground below. She lay there for several moments until she was assisted into the house.

Dr. J. G. Stover, of Bendersville, was summoned and, upon examination, found that her injuries were not of a serious nature, though very painful. He adjusted the fracture and dislocation. To-day Mrs. Deardorff is not able to be about and is still enduring a great deal of pain.

Another broken collar bone was reported from the upper end of the county as the result of an accident which happened Charles Thomas, of Brysonia, several days ago. Mr. Thomas was riding his horse to the blacksmith shop when the animal made a sudden turn and threw him off. A fractured collar bone was the result. He is now getting along nicely.

RUN BY AIR

Bob Sled Travels at Thirty Miles Per Hour.

Victor Grove, of Callao, Missouri, a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. George Grove, of Gettysburg, has an air propelled sled that will cover the ground at from thirty to forty miles an hour. In the summer the engine and propeller are used on a boat, which navigates the Charlton River. When the snow came in December it occurred to Mr. Grove that he could give his friends a novel thrill by rigging propeller and engine up on the rear of a bob-sled. He said after the proper construction was made on the sled it didn't take over fifteen minutes to put the engine in position and set it going.

The steering apparatus is an aeroplane guide wheel connected with a pair of movable runners in front.

The outfit has "navigated" some pretty tall hills, and Mr. Grove says with a good coat of snow on the highways he can go anywhere. The only drawback to the contrivance is the noise it makes. If one didn't know what was coming he could easily imagine a half score of rapid fire guns were popping off a mile or so down the road.

MONTHLY MEETING

Two Addresses before the Parent Teachers' Association.

The monthly meeting of the Parent Teachers' Association, postponed from last week, will be held on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Addresses will be made by Prof. Charles F. Sanders and Prof. W. A. Burgoon. Prof. Burgoon will tell things of interest to parents and teachers which he heard at the recent meeting at Harrisburg. Miss Minnie Lohr will render a vocal solo, and Mrs. R. E. Zinn will sing. Miss Margaret Stewart and Miss Edith Hollinger will give recitations and there will be the usual business session.

FR. WHALEN ROBBED

Held up by Masked Men on Scranton Street.

A hold highway robbery occurred in Scranton this week when two masked men held up Rev. William Whalen, assistant pastor of St. Edward's Catholic church. They rifled his pockets, procuring $9.50 in cash, and escaped, says a dispatch to the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Rev. Fr. Whalen is well-known here, having been a former assistant pastor at St. Francis Xavier church.

TWO DEATHS

Mrs. Alvin Dell and Young Son Die from Pneumonia.

Mrs. Estia Dell, wife of Alvin R. Dell, died at her late home at Union Mills, Md., Sunday evening, following a brief illness of pneumonia. She was aged about 28 years.

A sad feature of the death of the young mother was the passing away at an early hour Sunday morning of her eldest child, Harry, aged about twenty months, from the same disease.

Mrs. Dell was formerly a Miss Everhart, of Silver Run, and they had only been married about three years. She leaves her husband and a two months old infant.

The funeral of both mother and child was held Wednesday morning with services in the Silver Run Reformed church, Rev. S. C. Hoover, officiating. Interment on the family lot in the Silver Run cemetery.

'QUAKE IN ITALY KILLS 10,000

Town of Avezzano is Virtually Destroyed.

ROME AND NAPLES SUFFER

Many Antique Structures Are Ruined and Destruction Is Widespread Through Central Italy.

Rome, Jan. 14.—A terrific earthquake shook this city and the whole of central Italy, causing a loss of lives estimated at 10,000.

The town of Avezzano was virtually destroyed, the dead being estimated at about 8000. One thousand persons escaped from the ruins, but most of them were injured.

In Rome the earthquake was the most terrific the city has experienced. It lasted several seconds and caused a serious panic, people everywhere rushing in terror from their houses. Many buildings, some of historic interest, were damaged by the shock. No lives were lost so far as could be learned.

Among the old buildings damaged was the Palazzo Chigi, as well as the famous column of Marcus Aurelius. At a point about half way up the column had been broken and twisted. It was at least six inches from its true axis. The immense bronze statue of St. Paul on top of the column also inclined to one side.

Historic buildings on the Piazza Colonna, in the center of Rome, also were damaged, as was also the famous Farnese palace, occupied by the French embassy. Here a piece of the stone cornice had fallen.

The bell of the church of St. Andrea is in danger of falling, and the building has been surrounded by a cordon of police to prevent the people from approaching it.

So violent was the shock that the dome of the church of St. Charles Cattinari was cracked.

A large piece of the cornice of the Jesuit church of St. Ignatius broke and fell with a crash, which added to the fright of the persons in the neighborhood.

A colossal statue at the Basilica of St. John in Lateran, which occupied a position visible from many parts of Rome, fell and was shattered on the steps of the edifice.

Ceilings in many of the houses fell, a number of persons being injured thereby.

Several street car lines suspended operations.

As the day wore on and details began to arrive in Rome, it was apparent that the disturbance in the province of Rome and the Abruzzi had been greater than at first believed and that it also had been felt severely in the region around Naples.

At Monte Rotondo three persons were killed and two wounded; at Zagarolo the dome of a church fell; at Galiano part of the cathedral was wrecked; at Veroli two persons were killed and two injured; at Tivoli one person was killed; at Pereto five houses collapsed, and at Poggio Nativo one person was killed and several were injured.

Thus far it has been impossible to communicate with the ancient fortified city of Aquila, in the Abruzzi, owing to the interruption of the telegraph service. It is reported, however, that several villages were destroyed in that vicinity.

In Torre Cajeani, about thirty-seven miles east of Rome, almost the entire village was destroyed, while at Arara the municipal building collapsed.

From numerous places in the affected districts calls for doctors and medicine are reaching Rome.

Pope Benedict was reciting the thanksgiving after the morning mass when the shock occurred. The pontiff retained his composure and gave orders immediately that the damage, both inside and outside the Vatican, be ascertained and requested a report whether assistance was required.

King Victor Emmanuel also ordered the minister of the interior to give him all details of the earthquake. The king expressed a desire to visit the damaged cities.

At the capital two magnificent canelestics fell and were broken.

Foresters Lose in Court.

Watertown, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Supreme Court Justice E. C. Emerson handed down a decision in a test case which affects all Foresters in the United States who joined the order prior to 1889. The decision holds that such Foresters need not pay an extraordinary assessment levied in 1912 which amounts to virtually $250 on $1000 of insurance.

GENERAL VON BISSING.

German Commander New Governor General of Belgium.

General Moritz von Bissing is the new German governor general of Belgium. He succeeds General Colmar von der Goltz, who was first appointed, but recently sent to Turkey. General von Bissing is sixty-one years old. He is a veteran of the war of 1870. He was commanding general of the Seventh army corps from 1901 to 1908. In 1902 he was made general of cavalry and a member of the upper house of the reichstag.

GERMANS TAKE FRENCH TRENCHES

Violent Drive Results in Gains Along Coast.

London, Jan. 14.—Violent attacks by the Germans drove the allies from their trenches near the Belgian coast, in the vicinity of Nieuport, on the western battle line, and resulted in the capture of 1700 French, according to the Berlin official report.

The French admit slight reverses, but assert that the severe prevailing in the vicinity has hindered active fighting.

The Germans again have stormed "spur 132," northeast of Soissons, in what Paris describes as an "important attack." The result is still unknown in Paris. The French took the hill only last Saturday, and since then the Germans have made a determined effort to carry it by a counter attack.

The scene of this fighting is the nearest point to the French capital along the battle line, being only sixty miles from Paris.

Similar violent fighting is reported as progressing about fifty miles further east, near Perthes, where the Germans, by a counter attack, succeeded in breaking through and in establishing themselves behind the French advanced position north of Beauséjour. The fighting presumably continued all night, but the outcome is not known. The Germans apparently are making great efforts not only to hold what they have recovered, but also to drive the French further back, as an advance on the part of the latter would threaten their communication on the north.

PRUSSIAN LOSSES 840,343

Latest Casualty List in Killed, Missing and Wounded in War.

Copenhagen, Jan. 14.—The Prussian losses since the beginning of the war are 840,343 in killed, wounded and missing, according to casualty lists from 117 to 121. These lists contain the names of 44,299 officers and men.

In addition there are 133 Bavarian, 59 Saxon and 89 Wuertemberg lists and 14 naval lists. Bavarian losses figure continually, the troops being the heaviest losers in West Flanders. At Wytschaele, near Ypres, the Seventeenth Bavarian reserve regiment was completely swept away, and the whole staff killed. The greater part of the Prussian lists contain names of men killed, wounded or missing in Poland.

May Shift Von Hindenburg.

London, Jan. 14.—An Amsterdam dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company says travellers there from Germany report that in response to a popular demand, Field Marshal von Hindenburg, commander of the German campaign against Russia, is likely to be transferred to the western battle front in the spring.

TURKS TAKE PERSIAN CITY

Gain Important Base For Move Against Russians.

NEW GERMAN MOVE IN EAST

Von Hindenburg Abandons Drive on Warsaw and Plans Great Invasion of Galicia.

London, Jan. 14.—Reuter's Telegram company has received a dispatch from its correspondent in Petrograd, saying that an advance detachment of the Turkish army has occupied the Persian city of Tabriz.

This means that the Turks, who undoubtedly had the backing of some of the wild Turkish tribesmen of the locality, have obtained a more or less important base for the projected German-Turkish attack upon the Russian positions in the province of Erivan north of the Persian border and south of Tiflis.

The occupation of Tabriz, which is the capital of the province of Azerbaijan, was rendered comparatively easy by the recent withdrawal of the Russian forces to meet the Ottoman advance further west. In the absence of Russian troops it is not likely the city offered any serious resistance.

Russia's most vulnerable point, at which the Turks are aiming, lies along the undefended Russo-Persian frontier to the north of Tabriz. There never has been any necessity to guard this portion of the Russian boundary against attack.

A telegram from Petrograd says 1000 persons are fleeing on foot from the province of Azerbaijan toward the Caucasian frontier, before the Turkish advance. Many of these fugitives, it is said, are dying of hunger and cold.

Russians Capture Turkish Regiment.

Petrograd, Jan. 14.—The capture of the entire Ninety-second regiment by the Russians in Transcaucasia is officially reported here.

A statement issued by the general staff of the army in the Caucasus says:

"Fighting in the region of Olti, fifty-five miles west of Kars, continues obstinately, the rear guard of the Turks being on the river Ohn and to the west."

"The bitter fighting in the Karu Urgan region has latterly inclined in our favor. On Jan. 11 we captured the Ninety-second regiment of infantry, including eleven officers, three surgeons and 1500 men."

"We also partly destroyed the Fifty-second regiment of infantry, a portion of which, consisting of 250 soldiers, and one officer, was captured."

Field Marshal von Hindenburg has again changed his plan of campaign in the eastern theater of the war. The massed attacks in the Warsaw region have ceased and intermittent fighting, with spasmodic attacks by the Germans at various points, replaces the violent battles that heretofore have marked the invasion.

It is reported that Germany will abandon the drive on the Polish capital, and that the next great move by the Kaiser's commander-in-chief will be from the Carpathians. Large German forces are assembling in the Austrian frontier, and it has been reported in advices from Berlin that this force will be sent against the Servians in the order to retrieve the defeat of the Austrians. However, Petrograd is skeptical in accepting this version.

In the meantime the Russian troops in Buckowina are marching southward at the rate of twelve miles a day in an effort to form a junction with the Servians.

The Russian army on the south Polish frontier has again assumed the offensive toward Cracow, the gateway to Silesia. It is working westward on the Nida river, and steadily pressing General Dankl's forces backward along the road to Czenstochowa.

The Germans are keeping the Mazurian lakes open with ice-breakers to block the Russian advance in East Prussia, where the Russian troops hold positions around the lakes and have been waiting for the lakes to freeze over before resuming their offensive.

200,000 INDIANS IN WAR

Are Serving in France, Egypt, East Africa and Along Persian Gulf.

Delhi, India, Jan. 14.—The viceroy Baron Hardinge, in a speech at the opening of the vice regal council, disclosed that the troops which India has contributed to the war numbered 200,000.

These Indian soldiers are distributed in France, Egypt, East Africa and along the Persian Gulf.

Baron Hardinge spoke feelingly of India's proof of patriotic sentiments. He said the "noblest sentiment ever uttered" concerning a nation's duty was expressed in the words of Abraham Lincoln: "With malice toward none, with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right."

Courbet Still Afloat.

Paris, Jan. 14.—The ministry of marine issued an unequivocal denial of the report that the French battleship Courbet was sunk by an Austrian submarine in the straits of Otranto or in the Adriatic sea. The statement also denied that the Jean Bart was damaged in the least.

Battle of the Nervii.

According to investigations made by Napoleon III of France the battle of Nervii took place between the villages of La Buissiere and Louvroil on the River Sambre.

SCHWAB TO BUILD WAR ORDNANCE PLANT

Lets Contract For a Mill at New Castle, Del.

Bethlehem, Pa., Jan. 14.—Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel company, has awarded the contract for the erection of a large additional ordnance factory at New Castle, Del. It was learned here.

So stupendous are the war orders obtained by Mr. Schwab that this step became necessary, and the contract was let on Tuesday.

The size of the Delaware factory in feet and inches was not given. The only thing said about it is that it will be "large." At present all products of the Bethlehem Steel company for the allied armies are sent from Bethlehem to Canada.

Germany has not protested against the making of shrapnel, and it will be made at New Castle, close to the Dupont powder factory and at a spot where it can be loaded on boats that will quickly pass down the Delaware river and bay into the Atlantic ocean.

English army officers, who arrived in Bethlehem on Sunday and Monday to inspect the contract work, will probably go to New Castle as soon as the plant there is in operation.

It is said that at present it is easier for correspondents to get into the German trenches than into the Bethlehem Steel company's plant.

U. S. LOAN FOR RUSSIA

New York Financiers Will Advance $12,000,000, Says Petrograd.

Petrograd, Jan. 14.—A group of New York bankers, including J. P. Morgan & Co., have agreed to lend to the Russian government $12,000,000, according to an official announcement made here.

This amount is subject to draft by Russia at one, two or three months, at 4 1/2 per cent, with one-half of one per cent additional for acceptance.

Prominent Petrograd bankers say that this is a forerunner of further credits to be extended to Russia by American financiers.

The president of an important Petrograd bank has left for New York where he will confer with financiers and government officials, with the idea of perfecting Russian exchange facilities.

COURT ASKED FOR RECEIVER

State Attorney General Declares Insurance Company Is Insolvent.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 14.—At the request of the state insurance department the state attorney general applied to the Dauphin county court for a receiver for the Prudential Fire Insurance company, of Wilkes-Barre, alleging it is insolvent and if permitted to continue business longer will endanger the interests of its stockholders and others.

The court fixed Jan. 27 for argument. Dr. O. K. Grier is president and John E. Holt treasurer of the company.

CHAPTER I.
Warrington, an American
adventurer, and James, his servant,
with a caged parrot, the bird known as Parrot & Co., were on their way down the Irrawaddy to Rangoon, to travel along the road to the landing ground for Rangoon to catch a draft for 200,000 rupees.

CHAPTER II.

A Man With a Past.

The oriental night air was stifling. It was without refreshment; it became a labor and not an exhilaration to breathe it. A pall of suffocating dust rolled above and about the Irrawaddy flotilla boat which, buffeted by the strong, irregular current, strained at its cables, now at the bow, now at the stern, not dissimilar to the las, rocking of a deserted swing. This sensation was quite perceptible to the girl who leaned over the bow rail, her handkerchief pressed to her nose, and gazed intently at the steep bank, up and down which the sweating coolies swarmed like gargantuan rats. A dozen torches were stuck into the ground above the crumbling ledge; she saw the flames as one sees a burning match cupped in a smoker's hands, shedding light upon nothing save that which stands immediately behind it.

She choked a little. Her eyes smarted. Her lips were slightly cracked, and cold-cream seemed only to provide a surer resting place for the impalpable dust. It had penetrated through wool and linen and silk, intimately, until three baths a day had become a welcome routine, providing it was possible to obtain water. Water. Her tongue ran across her lips. Oh, for a drink from the old cold pure spring at home! Tea, coffee, and bottled soda; nothing that ever touched the thirsty spots in her throat.

She looked up at the stars and they looked down upon her, but what she asked they could not, would not, answer. Night after night she had asked, and night after night they had only twinkled as of old. She had traveled now for four months, and still the doubt beset her. It was to be a leap in the dark, with no one to tell her what was on the other side. But why this insistent doubt? Why could she not take the leap gladly, as a woman should who had given the affirmative to a man? With him she was certain that she loved him, away from him she did not know what sentiment really abided in her heart. She was wise enough to realize that something was wrong; and there were but three months between her and the inevitable decision. Never before had she known other than momentary indecision; and it irked her to find that her clarity of vision was fallible and human like the rest of her. The truth was, she didn't know her mind. She shrugged, and the movement stirred the dust that had gathered upon her shoulders.

"A rare old lot of dust; eh, Miss Chetwood? I wish we could travel by night, but you can't trust this blooming old Irrawaddy after sundown. Chits are so much waste-paper."

"I never cease wondering how those poor coolies can carry those heavy rice bags," she replied to the purser. "Oh, they are used to it," carelessly. The great gray stack of paddy-bags seemed, in the eyes of the girl, fairly to melt away.

"By Jove!" exclaimed the purser. "There's Parrot & Co.!" He laughed and pointed toward one of the torches.

"Parrot & Co.? I do not understand."

"That big blond chap behind the fourth torch. Yes, there. Sometime I'll tell you about him. Picturesque duffer."

She could have shrieked aloud, but all she did was to draw in her breath with a gasp that went so deep it gave her heart a twinge. Her fingers tightened upon the teak rail. Suddenly she knew, and was ashamed of her weakness. It was simply a remarkable likeness, nothing more than that; it could not possibly be anything more. Still, a ghost could not have startled her as this living man had done.

"Who is he?"

"A chap named Warrington. But over here that signifies nothing; might just as well be Jones or Smith or Brown. We call him Parrot & Co. He's always carrying that Rajputana parrot. You've seen the kind around the palaces and forts; sabel-like wings, long tail-feathers, green and blue and scarlet, and the ugliest little rascals going. This one is trained to do tricks."

"But the man?" impatiently.

He eyed her, mildly surprised. "Oh, he puzzles us all a bit, you know. Well educated; somewhere back a gentleman; from the States. Of course I don't know; something shady, probably. They don't tramp about like this otherwise. For all that, he's rather a decent sort; no boaster like this roller we left at Mandalay. He never talks about himself. I fancy he's lonesome again."

"Lonesome?"

"It's the way, you know. These poor beggars drop aboard for the night, merely to see a white woman again, to hear decent English, to dress and dine like a human being. They disappear the next day, and often we never see them again."

"What do they do?" The question came to her lips mechanically.

"Paddy-fields. White men are needed to oversee them. And then, there's the railway, and there's the new oil country north of Prome. You'll see the wells tomorrow. Rather fancy this Warrington-chap has been working along the new pipe line. They're running them down to Rangoon. If he's with us tomorrow, I'll have him put the parrot through its turns. An amusing little beggar."

"Why not introduce him to me?"

"Beg pardon?"

"I'll take all the responsibility. It's a whim."

"Well, you American girls are the eighth wonder of the world." The purser was distinctly annoyed. "And it may be an impertinence on my part, but I never yet saw an American woman who would accept advice or act upon it."

"Thanks. What would you advise?" with dangerous sweetness.

"Not to meet this man. It's irregular. I know nothing about him. If you had a father or a brother on board."

"Or even a husband?" laughing.

"There you are!" resignedly. "You laugh. You women go everywhere, and half the time unprotected."

"Never quite unprotected. We never venture beyond the call of gentlemen."

"That is true," brightening. "You insist on meeting this chap?"

"I do not insist; only, I am bored and he might interest me for an hour."

She added: "Besides, he may annoy the others."

The purser grinned reluctantly. "You and the colonel don't get on. Well, I'll introduce this chap at dinner. If I don't."

"I am fully capable of speaking to him without any introduction whatever," she laughed again. "It will be very kind of you."

When he had gone she mused over this impulse so alien to her character. An absolute stranger, a man with a past, perhaps a fugitive from justice; and because he looked like Arthur Ellison, she was seeking his acquaintance. Something, then, could break through her reserve and aloofness? She had traveled from San Francisco to Colombo, unattended save by an elderly maiden who had risen by gradual stages from nurse to companion, but who could not be made to remember that she was no longer a nurse. In all these four months Elsa had not made half a dozen acquaintances, and of these she had not sought one. Yet, she was asking to meet a stranger whose only recommendation was a singular likeness to another man. The purser was right. It was very irregular.

"Parrot & Co.," she murmured. She searched among the phantoms moving to and fro upon the ledge; but the man with the cage was gone. It was really uncanny.

Elsa Chetwood was twenty-five, lithely built, outwardly reposeful, but dynamic within. Education, environment and breeding had somewhat smothered the glowing fires. She was a type of the ancient repression of woman, which finds its exceptions in the Aspasias and Helens and Cleopatras of legend and history. In features she looked exactly what she was, well-bred and well-born. Beauty she also had, but it was the cold beauty of northern winter nights. It compelled admiration rather than invited it. Spiritually, Elsa was asleep. The fire was there, the gift of loving greatly, only it smoldered, without radiating even the knowledge of its presence. Men loved her, but in awe, as one loves the marbles of Phidias. She knew no restraint, and yet she had passed through her sterner years restrained. Her independence was inherent and not acquired. She had laid down certain laws for herself to follow; and that these often clashed with the laws of convention, which are fetters to those who divide society into three classes, only mildly amused her. Right from wrong she knew, and that sufficed her.

Her immediate relatives were dead; those who were distantly related remained so, as they had no part in her life nor she in theirs. From her father she had inherited a remarkable and seldom errant judgment. To her, faces were generally book covers, they repelled or attracted; and she found large and undiminished interest in the faculty of pressing back the covers and reading the text. Often battered covers held treasures, and often the editions de luxe were swindles. But in between the battered covers and the exquisite Florentine hand-tooled there ranged a row of mediocre books; and it was among these that Elsa found that her instinct was not wholly infallible, as will be seen.

Today she was facing the first problem of her young life, epochal. She was, as it were, to stop and begin life anew. And she didn't know she wasn't sure.

There were few passengers aboard. There were three fussy old English maidens under the protection of a still fustier old colonel. The quartet greatly amused Elsa. Their nods were abrupt, and they spoke in the most formal manner. She was under grave suspicion; in the first place, she was traveling alone, in the second place, she was an American. At table there was generally a desultory conversation and a man's barb of malice Elsa shot from her bow. Figuratively, the colonel walked about like a porcupine, bristling with arrows instead of quills. Elsa could have shouted at times, for the old war dog was perfectly oblivious. There was, besides, the inevitable German tourist, who shelled with questions every man who wore brass buttons, until there was some serious talk of dropping him astern some day. He had shelled the colonel, but that gentleman was snugly incased in the finest and most impenetrable Bessemer, complacency.

Upon these Irrawaddy boats the purser is usually the master of ceremonies in the dining saloon. Elsa usually sat at the purser's right, and tonight she found the stranger sitting quietly at her side. The chair had been vacant since the departure from Mandalay. Evidently the purser had decided to be thorough in regard to her wishes. It would look less conspicuous to make the introduction in this manner. And she wanted to meet this man who had almost made her cry out in astonishment.

"Parrot & Co.!" She murmured.

"Miss Chetwood, Mr. Warrington." This was as far as the purser would unbend.

The colonel's eyes popped; the hands of the three maidens fluttered. Warrington bowed awkwardly, for he was decidedly confused.

"Ha!" boomed the German. "Vat do you tink uff?"

And from soup to coffee Warrington eluded, dodged, stepped under and ran around the fusillade of questions.

Elsa laughed softly. There were breathing spells, to be sure. Under the cover of this verbal bombardment she found time to inspect the stranger. The likeness, so close at hand, started a ringing in her ears and a flutter in her throat. It was almost unbelievable. He was bigger, broader, his eyes were keener, but there was only one real difference: this man was rugged, whereas Arthur was elegant. It was as if nature had taken two forms from the same mold, and had finished but one of them. His voice was not unpleasant, but there were little sharp points of harshness in it, due quite possibly to the dust.

"I am much interested in that little parrot of yours. I have heard about him."

"Oh! I suppose you've heard what they call us?" His eyes looked straight into hers, smilingly.

"Parrot & Co.? Yes. Will you show him off tomorrow?"

"I shall be very happy to."

But all the while he was puzzling over the purser's unaccountable action in deliberately introducing him to this brown-eyed, golden-skinned young woman. Never before had such a thing occurred upon these boats. True, he had occasionally been spoken to; an idle question flung at him, like a bare bone to a dog. If flung by an Englishman, he answered it courteously, and subsided. He had been snubbed too many times not to have learned this lesson. It never entered his head that the introduction might have been brought about by the girl's interest. He was too mortally shy of women to conceive of such a possibility. So his gratitude was extended to the purser, who, on his side, regretted his ill-natured recommendations of the previous hour.

When Elsa learned that the man at her side was to proceed to Rangoon, she ceased to ask him any more questions. She preferred to read her books slowly. Once, while he was engaging the purser, her glance ran over his clothes. She instantly berated her impulsive criticism as a bit of downright caddishness. The lapels of the coat were shiny; the winged collar gave evidence of having gone to the native laundry once too often, and the cuff buttons were of ordinary rupee silver. The ensemble suggested that since the purchase of these habiliments of civilization the man had grown, expanded.

Immediately after dinner she retired to her stateroom, conscious that her balance needed readjusting. She had heard and read much lore concerning reincarnation, skeptically; yet here, within call of her voice, was Arthur, not the shadow of a substance, but Arthur, shorn of his elegance, his soft, lazy voice, his half-dreaming eyes, his charming indolence. Why should this man's path cross hers, out of all the millions that ran parallel?

She opened her window and looked up at the stars again. She wondered what this man had done to put him beyond the pale. It was not possible that dishonor lurked behind those frank blue eyes. She turned from the window and threw open one of her kit-bags, delved among the soft fabrics and silks and produced a photograph. She had not glanced at it during all these weeks. There had been a purpose back of this apparent neglect. The very thing she dreaded happened. Her pulse beat on, evenly, unaltered. She was a failure.

In the photograph the man's beard was trimmed Valois; the beard of the man who had sat next to her at dinner had grown freely and naturally, full. Such a beard was out of fashion, save among country doctors. It signified carelessness, indifference, or a full life wherein the niceties of the razor had of necessity been ignored. Keenly she searched the familiar likeness. What an amazing freak of nature! It was unreal. She tossed the photograph back into the kit-bag, bewildered, uneasy.

Meantime Warrington followed the purser into his office. "I haven't paid for my stateroom yet," he said.

"I'll make it out at once. Rangoon, I understand?"

"Yes. But I'm in a difficulty. I have nothing in change but two rupees."

The purser froze visibly. The tale was true in his ears.

"But I fancy I've rather good security to offer," went on Warrington coolly. He drew from his wallet a folded slip of paper and spread it out.

The purser stared at it, enchanted. Warrington stared down at the purser, equally enchanted.

"By Jove!" the former gasped finally. "And so you're the chap who's been holding up the oil syndicate all these months? And you're the chap who made them come to this bally landing three days ago?"

It was altogether a new purser who looked up. "Twenty thousand pounds about, and only two rupees in your pocket! Well, well; it takes the East to bowl a man over like this. A certified check on the Bank of Burma needs no further recommendation. In the words of your countrymen, go as far as you like. You can pay me in Rangoon. Your boy takes deck passage?"

"Yes," returning the check to the wallet.

"Now, sit down and spin the yarn. It must be jolly interesting."

"I'll admit that it has been a tough struggle; but I knew that I had the oil. Been flat broke for months. Had to borrow my boy's savings for food and shelter. Well, this is the way it runs." Warrington told it simply, as if it were a great joke.

"Rippin'! By Jove, you Americans are hard customers to put over. I suppose you'll be setting out for the States at once?" with a curious glance.

"I haven't made any plans yet," eyeing the cheroot thoughtfully.

"I see." The purser nodded. It was not difficult to understand. "Well, good luck to you wherever you go."

Alone in his stateroom Warrington took out Rajah and tossed him on the counterpane of the bed.

"Now, then, old sport!" tapping the parrot on the back with the perch which he used as a baton. Blinking

Blinking and Muttering, the Bird Performed His Tricks.

and muttering, the bird performed his tricks, and was duly rewarded and returned to his home of iron. "She'll be wanting to take you home with her, but you're not for sale."

He then opened his window and leaned against the sill, looking up at the stars. But, unlike the girl, he did not ask any questions.

"Free!" he said softly.

MENDING HUMAN WRECKS OF WAR.

German Field Hospitals Now Great Repair Shops.

MEN TAUGHT HOW TO TALK

Tales of Bravery Lighten Gloom of Suffering—Two Iron Crosses Pinned Over Cot of Fritz Lucht, Air Man, Whose Deeds Won Admiration Even of Enemies.

Today I saw men being taught to talk again. In the "human repair shops," the great German field hospitals, many men were learning anew the use of brains, tongue, hands and feet. They had received their baptism of fire. Bullet, shrapnel, broken shell, all had done their work. And now medical science was doing its utmost to restore the victims to partial normality, writes Karl H. von Wiegand, a United Press staff correspondent from Laon, France.

Professor Bockenheimer, in charge, and Dr. Luckemuehler, chief surgeon, explained the work. They care for 2,100 severe cases, but the slightly wounded are given first aid treatment and then sent back to the home bases, as this is too close to the actual front to permit keeping any wounded that can be moved. More than a score of cases, French and German alike, where trepanning operations had been necessary, were shown.

It was a singular picture. Through the windows came the deep low notes of distant guns killing, smashing, tearing, maiming the human "toupins." Here they were being patched up. Nurses sat by the bedsides of friends and foe alike, bathing fevered brows and teaching pale faced, bearded men to speak the most simple words, telling them the names of objects and putting words together into sentences.

Lips Form Word "Pencil."

"What is this?" asked Professor Bockenheimer, holding a pencil before a bearded warrior from whose skull he had cut a splinter of steel. The lips trembled. Then came the feeble answer, "Pencil."

I held up a cigarette and asked what it was. The man's lips moved and a look came on his face which seemed to say that he knew what it was but could not say. Then Professor Bockenheimer came to the rescue. "What do we do with it?" he asked. An apparent tremendous mental effort, then the reply, "Smoke."

"Correct," said the professor. "Now what is it?" This time the brain and tongue worked and the answer was correct.

"Hours have to be spent by the nurses teaching these men all over again," explained the professor. "It requires unending patience and perseverance."

Many cases of plastic surgery were shown. Men with most of their faces smashed away were being brought back to life with parts of their bodies grafted to cover the terrible gaping holes. Many would be much better dead, but the doctors feel it is their duty to save all they can.

"We do not ask the wounded whether they want to live or die," explained Professor Bockenheimer.

At the main French hospital Professor Manasse of Stuttgart was in charge. Here, too, nurses were teaching men to talk again, and terrible wrecks of humanity were being patched up.

An Air Man's Exploit.

Two iron crosses of the first and second class pinned to the wall over a cot attracted my attention. The patient was young Fritz Lucht, air man, whose latest deed fills one of the brightest pages of the annals of aerial battles of the great war.

With an officer as observer he was attacked while flying north of Rheims. They were attacked by a French monoplane armed with a machine gun. Lucht and his officer had only their pistols. Round and round they circled, each trying to gain the advantage by getting above the other. At 6,000 feet the French plane gained its position and the German was riddled. The desperate fight was visible from the lines of both armies.

Lucht was shot through the liver and lung, but he realized that his officer had maps and observations that were badly needed. So he planned downward toward the German lines, landing just inside them. Soldiers removed the two men, just as the French artillery, having secured the range, demolished the plane with well placed shots. In the hospital General von Emmich pinned the decorations on the aviator's shirt. He will probably recover.

PIN IN BODY SIXTY-FIVE YEARS

Entered Throat, Extracted Through Ear, and Deafness Is Cured.

C. B. Truesdell, a farmer of Canton, Mich., when a boy swallowed a small pin, which lodged in his throat and nearly caused strangulation. After a lapse of sixty-five years a pin point was noticed protruding from his left ear. It was removed.

Mr. Truesdell had at times suffered nearly total deafness and constant pain in his head and had the services of several physicians without relief, but now that the cause is removed his hearing is normal and the pain has ceased.

Does Work of Many Men.

At the Church of the Sacred Heart in Paris a 20-ton bell is tolled by electricity. A choir boy does the work which formerly required the services of five men.

TWO YEARS' WAR, DECLARES EDISON

Days of Thirty Years' Contest
Passed, Says Wizard.

SUBMARINES ARE EFFECTIVE

Their Exploits Teach Lessons In Building of Battleships—Boom In Business Here to Be Tremendous After the War—Worry? Think of the Kaiser!

"The year 1914 dealt a staggering blow to civilization, the arts and the sciences," said Thomas A. Edison at his laboratory in West Orange. "But civilization will recover from the blow
very soon after the war ends."

"And that will be?" asked a correspondent of the New York World.

"Not for two years, I fear," said the great inventor. "This war has taught the world that the killing of men in war is a scientific proposition now.
With all the implements of destruction and plans for offensive and defensive operations so carefully mapped out and with the great number of men that can be drawn into the fray by both sides,
the conflict will be long drawn out."

"There have been wars that have lasted thirty years, but those days are past. Killing men is a different proposition today, but I believe the present struggle will not end for at least two years, although I pray it will end sooner than any of us expects."

Mr. Edison added that the submarine has been the greatest offensive instrument in the world conflict and
said:

"While the submarine has not obviated the necessity of the Dread-nought, it surely has lessened its value. But you can bet the ships England is constructing now are so built that they will be protected against submarine torpedoes. The effect of a primary explosion can be greatly minimized by the interior construction of a Dreadnought, and this, in all likelihood, is being done by the allies now."

The hearty old gentleman, from whose pockets the destruction of his plant by fire took $3,000,000 a short time ago, seemed entirely happy.

"Did your loss persuade you to make any New Year's resolutions?"
he was asked.

Worry? Think of the Kaiser!

"Resolutions?" he repeated. "Nonsense! Years ago I formed my rules of life and I have adhered to them.
The chief of them all is 'Work.' No,
the loss of the money does not worry me. Nothing was burned that cannot be replaced. I was up against a harder proposition when we built the first electric lighting plant in New York.
It was something new—electric lighting—then. A fortune had been invested and the whole world was awaiting the outcome. Everything depended upon the success of that plant, but as a result of it the world has become electrically illuminated at night, as it were."

"When any one talks about worry
he might apply my new standard of worry. Just think of the Kaiser, now on the defensive, with nearly 900 miles of battlefield, all told, on the east and west. Why, the average man's worries sink into insignificance compared to this. Another standard of disaster is Belgium—little, gritty Belgium!"

"It has surprised me to see how Americans have become weak-kneed
over this war. They seem to be stricken with a sort of commercial paralysis.
They want to get out and do something; now is the opportune time.
Why, you can put a building up cheaper today than you could before the war, and yet many of our supposed good business men will wait until the war is over as a sign of prosperity and pay more for the building. The wise man will prepare now for the boom in trade that we will soon experience and which will be tremendous after the war."

TO RIDE IN ALL ELEMENTS.

Inventor's Vehicle Will Fly, Run on Land, Float or Swim.

William A. Sharpe, a Denver mechanic, after laboring thirteen years,
is completing a passenger carrying machine which is designed to traverse the air, to run on land as do automobiles, to travel the surface of water or to be used as a submarine vessel.

Sharpe says his aeromotorcar is designed to carry four passengers, but may be constructed to carry 250 persons in the air, on land or in water, with all the accommodations of a Pullman car or ocean liner. When placed on the market the cost will not exceed that of a standard automobile,
he says.

The aeromotor is designed to attain a speed of from thirty to 300 miles an hour and a carrying capacity of 2,000 pounds for each 1,000 pounds weight of the car. The entire vehicle is built of pressed steel and aluminum. The inventor says it is constructed on well recognized principles.

Arrows Carry Belgian Mail.

The Germans confiscated bows and arrows found in northern Belgium, where archery still flourishes. French humorists were amused at this action, but it appears that the Belgians were using the arrows to shoot letters into Holland to avoid the German censors.

Without Exception.

MYSTERY NOISES.

Of Unknown Origin, They Sound Like Muffled Thunder.

COMMON IN THE OLD WORLD.

These Curious Boomings, That Puzzle Science, Heard at Times From Australia to Ireland, Are Akin to the "Moodus Noises" of Connecticut.

It is a hot and tranquil summer afternoon on the Belgian coast in time of peace. Strolling along the shore you are startled by a muffled detonation that seems to come from somewhere far out at sea. Can it be thunder? There is not a cloud in the sky, and you remember that thunder is rarely audible at a greater distance than fifteen miles. A man-of-war at target practice, perhaps—far in the offing. At this point your Belgian friend explains. It was the "mistpoeffer," he says, and a sign that the weather will continue fair.

But what is the mistpoeffer? If you can answer that question you can also explain the mysterious Barisal guns of India (Barisal is the name of a town in the Ganges delta), which have puzzled scientific men for half a century. You can explain also the strange rumblings that in certain parts of Italy seem to come from nowhere in particular and are known to the peasantry under forty or more local names, the desert sound of the Australian wilderness, the water guns of Lough Neagh in Ireland and the aerial detonations that occasionally startle Californians during the warm season.

For example, in September, 1896, to quote the Santa Rosa Republican, "a tremendous explosion, presumably in the air, occurred near Cazadero. It was heard by the dwellers of the mountain region over an area of 900 square miles."

All noises of this kind resembling thunder, but not traceable to that or any other known agency, are now generally called in scientific literature brontidi, a name first used by Professor Tito Alippi, who has made a special study of these phenomena in Italy.

The "Moodus noises," familiar to old residents of Moodus and East Had-dam, Conn., are probably kindred phenomena, although they seem to be somewhat more definitely associated with subterranean earth shocks than are typical brontidi, and the same may be said of the gongre of Haiti, which—at least in some cases—is easily recognized as of subterranean origin.

Although systematic investigations of brontidi are of recent date, occurrences of the phenomena have been recorded from early times. Lord Bacon mentions "an extraordinary noise in the sky when there is no thunder," and similar sounds were known to Humboldt and Boussingault. Captain Sturt, a pioneer explorer of Australia, wrote in 1829:

"About 3 p. m. of Feb. 7 (during the Australian summer) Mr. Hume and I were occupied tracing the chart upon the ground. The day had been remarkably fine. There was not a cloud in the heavens nor a breath of air to be felt. On a sudden we heard what seemed to be the report of a gun fired at the distance of between five and six miles. It was not the hollow sound of an earthly explosion or the sharp crackling noise of falling timber, but in every way resembled the discharge of a heavy piece of ordnance.

"No one was certain whence the sound proceeded. Both Mr. Hume and myself thought it came from the north-west. I sent one of the men up a tree, but he could observe nothing unusual. The country round him appeared equally flat on all sides and thickly wooded. Whatever occasioned the report, it made a strong impression on all of us, and to this day such a sound in such a situation is a matter of mystery to me."

Science has not fully solved the mystery of brontidi, but it can hardly be doubted that the origin of these sounds is really subterranean. From a focus far underground the jar of settling rocks sends vibrations to the surface—not at one spot, but over a wide area. Then if the overlying air is calm and homogeneous it also is set in vibration, and if the vibrations are of the right period to be audible the result is a booming sound of altogether indefinite location. It is simply "in the air"—Youth's Companion.

French Officers Made Thrifty.
The French army officer has to be a thrifty man to make ends meet on his salary of a very few francs a day, and borrowing or running into debt is an offense against military law. An officer convicted of debt is suspended by the war office for three years, and at the end of that time his reinstatement or dismissal from the service is decided by a kind of court martial, comprising five officers of his corps, one of them of his own rank.

Antiquity of Tin.
We find that brass, and consequently tin, existed in Tyre, the great seaport town of the Phoenicians, on the coast of Syria, about 1000 B. C. They are frequently referred to in all works relating to tin or to Cornwall. The Phoenicians were merchants and carried on an important trade from the ports of Tyre and Sidon. These cities rivaled each other in magnitude, fame and antiquity.

What I want to try to do is to judge my fellow human being as kindly as I do my dog.—Gerald Stanley Lee.

Folly of Anger.
To speak angrily to a person, to show your hatred by what you say or by the way you look, is an unnecessary proceeding—dangerous, foolish, ridiculous and vulgar.—Schopenhauer.

BOOM AND RAP WILSON IN SENATE

Cummins Says He is Trying to Run U. S.

WILLIAMS' 19.6 FORECAST

Declares President Will Be Renominated and Re-elected—Borah As-sails Indianapolis Speech.

Washington, Jan. 14.—An attack on President Wilson's use of his constitutional powers, criticism and support of his Mexican policy and political speechmaking mingled in a senate discussion of Senator Cummins resolution asking what the United States intends to do with the taxes collected during the occupation of Vera Cruz.

John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, defending the resolution, said it was well known that the money was to be turned over to any government in Mexico eventually recognized.

"You cannot embarrass the administration nor befuddle the American people with any such resolution," said he, launching into a defense of the president's policy. He declared if a certain American had been in the White House there would have been stern messages to congress, climaxed with: "Come on, boys, charge!"

"Woodrow Wilson will be renominated for the presidency," said Senator Williams, "and re-elected, not as a minority, but as a majority candidate. This is so because the American people have found him not only good enough to take the place of men about whom they were quarreling, but also good enough to stand in his own stead."

Senator Cummins insisted that congress, not the president, should decide what shall become of the Vera Cruz money, and then, paying a tribute to President Wilson's integrity and ability, added:

"I am simply objecting to his position that he is trying to run the United States. It appears in every utterance that falls from his lips. He assumes that under the constitution
he is the final arbiter of all these things. I have no doubt he assumes it with perfect honesty and with the most careful consideration."

Senator Borah assailed the president's Indianapolis speech, characterizing it as an admission by the president that he had arrived at the conclusion that he preferred to be the leader of his party rather than the chief executive of the whole people.

"I wish to quote the most significant statement ever made by a president with regard to a co-ordinate branch of the government," said he.
"No such statement has been made since the days of Andrew Johnson. I will not say that the spirit which actuated it is the same, but it calls for the serious consideration of every man."

Mr. Borah then cited the president's warning against any one attempting to break the solidarity of the democratic party "for any purpose," and
said:

"The president did not say for any evil purpose of any unwise principle, but for any purpose or any reason. Such is the sole and central principle upon which any corrupt political machine was ever organized or put into existence. There is no difference between what he said and what Tom Taggart said to his Indiana followers, eighty of whom pleaded guilty Tuesday to the crime of corruption. There is no difference between it and the orders issued by Murphy, of Tammany Hall, to his satellites to follow the dictates of the captain regardless of the dictates of conscience or judgment."

TWO-BATTLESHIP PLAN WINS

House Committee Also Votes For Seventeen Submarines.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The house
naval affairs committee voted to recommend construction next year of two new battleships, sixteen coast defense submarines, one seagoing submarine, six destroyers, one hospital ship, one transport and one oiler.
Eight of the coast submarines are for the Pacific coast.

Robbers Kill Deputy Sheriff.

Terlton, Okla., Jan. 14.—Three men robbed the Bank of Terlton, killed a deputy sheriff, wounded two other men, and escaped with $3000. The cashier was alone in the bank when the men entered. They forced him to hand them $3000 in bills. Robert Moore, a deputy sheriff, ran up as the men left the building. He was shot. Two members of a posse, following their trail, were wounded.

More Marines Ordered to Haiti.

Washington, Jan. 14.—New revolutionary troubles in Haiti have assumed such proportions that the cruiser Washington, now in Hampton Roads, has been ordered to take aboard 100
marines in addition to her present force of forty-six, and proceed at once to Guanacabo bay, on the south coast of Cuba, within reach of Haiti.

Germans Hurriedly Leaving Italy.

many applications which they have made for Italian nationality in the last few days have been refused.

ICE GORGE 50 FEET HIGH NEAR PEQUEA

Residents Along Susquehanna
Prepare to Flee.

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 14.—The residents of houses along the Susquehanna river between McCall's Ferry dam and Washington borough are preparing to flee to high ground because of the rapid rise of the river, due to the rain and the ice jam which extends from the dam a distance of sixteen miles up the stream.

The river is twelve feet above normal and is rising at the rate of a foot every hour. At the town of Pequea
the river is about a mile wide.

Here the ice is piled in the stream about twenty feet high for several miles. In some places the ice gorge is fifty feet in height. The water went over the banks and at present is completely covering the tracks of the Columbia & Port Deposit railroad. The water is rising more rapidly now than it did in 1904 and the following year, when great damage was done. The tracks are now more than two feet
under water.

Several persons living in houses
along the river had to be taken out of their homes by men in boats, who went out as rescuing parties. At the junction of Pequea creek and the Susquehanna river two men, Maris and John Schoof, were taken out of the second-story window of their home by the rescuers.

The trolley line between Pequea and Lancaster is completely out of commission in this section and a railroad bridge over the Cokesick creek
at the junction of the river, near Safe Harbor, is endangered.

At Safe Harbor, a small town about five miles above McCall's Ferry dam, the water is over the banks of the river and up to the second-story windows of all the houses in the town.
The residents of these houses were compelled to flee to the hills surrounding the town, where they are being taken care of in the homes of other people.

3 DROWNED AT PITTSBURGH

Nephew of U. S. Senator Oliver One of Victims of Boating Accident.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 14.—Three men were drowned and one rescued
from death in the Monongahela river.
Two of the men were drowned when they attempted to rescue two others who had been thrown into the river
by the capsizing of their boat.

The drowned are Robert Oliver, of the Oliver Iron and Steel company's mills, and nephew of United States Senator George T. Oliver; William Nichols and Thomas Mooney. The rescued man is Edward Hetzel.

Oliver and Hetzel boarded a skiff
at the mill and started rowing about 10 a. m. Near the Smithfield street bridge they were caught in a swift current and their little craft was whirled around and threatened to capsize. Hetzel stood up in the boat and cried for help.

The boat finally capsized, throwing both men into the water. Hetzel appeared to be stronger and attempted to swim to shore, but Oliver sank almost immediately.

Nichols and Mooney secured a boat and started to the rescue. Their boat was caught in the swirl and capsized and both men sank before they could reach them.

MILLIONS OF SHOES FOR ALLIES' HORSES.

Factories Pressed to Fill Single Order
Worth $25,000,000.

American manufacturers of horse shoes are not lying awake nights in worry about the duration of the war in Europe. Instead they are employing both their nights and days turning out their wares to keep up with the foreign and home demand.

One of their welcome burdens is the filling of an order from the waring nations for 6,000,000 pairs of shoes.
The factories at Providence, Poughkeepsie, Pittsburgh and Troy are going at high pressure to make the output fit the order.

The normal yearly exports of horse shoes, a maker told me, amount to about 10,000,000 pairs. There are no factories in Europe comparable with those in the United States, he said, and hence no particular reason why the manufacturers of this particular product in this country should stamp their shoes with the "Made in U. S. A." trade mark.

When demand is well distributed throughout the year, he said, there is little difficulty in meeting it, but a single order for 6,000,000 pairs necessitated abnormal activity by the makers.
Some of the shoes have been delivered others are on the way, and the rest are being turned out with the greatest possible speed. It is understood that the big order came from a single firm
in London and that the shoes are consigned to Holland as the distributing country.

Most, if not all, the shoes are for use by the armies of the allied nations.
The order is said to represent a cash investment of at least $25,000,000 by the purchaser, and the profit to the manufacturers is described as unusually attractive.

While the makers are not worried about the length of hostilities, they are reading carefully the opinions of experts on this phase of war discussions and relying on them somewhat.

as trade barometers for the months to come. The foreign war business is on the increase because it is on a cash basis and is even more profitable than the domestic trade.

HIS BURIED HAND ITCHED.

So Sufferer Dug It Up, Straightened
Fingers and Got Relief.

Suffering intense pains in a hand
which had been amputated and buried Lewis Jefferson of Rhodes, Del., had no relief until the hand was uncovered and the fingers straightened out, since when he last felt no more pain.

The strange story is vouched for by Jefferson himself, who had his hand cut off by a chainsaw at the Allen mills several weeks ago. During the past week he had been suffering with severe pains and with an itching sensation in what would have been the palm of his hand.

Unrelieved by physicians, the young man acted on the advice of friends and dug up the amputated hand, which had been buried for nearly six weeks. The fingers of the hand were found in a cramped position. After straightening out the fingers and weighting them so that they could not again double up,
the hand was reburied. All pain left Jefferson at once, and he claims that he has suffered no inconvenience since.

WAR ONLY BY REFERENDUM

Senator Owen Would Have People Decide Nation's Action.

Aggressive warfare by the United States would be possible only on approval of a majority of the voters of the country under a constitutional amendment proposed by Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma.

The power of the president to call out troops to resist invasion would not be altered, but declaration of an offensive war would have to be submitted to a referendum.

Easy To Darken Your Gray Hair

You can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.

A WAX ROSE
By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

Worthington, an American tourist, was traveling on foot in Italy. There are some queer regions in Italy. Worthington would pass over a section of country wherein there were no inhabitants; then he would come upon a town set on the top of a hill, with no outskirts, nothing to connect it with any other people. He resolved to investigate one of these towns and, for the purpose, remain in it several days. He did not find out much about the town, except that it was a relic of medieval times, when no one felt safe unless enclosed in stone walls on the summit of a hill.

Worthington stopped at a hostelry commanding beautiful and interesting views. He loved to sit on a stone portico and look out on the landscape. The landlord's daughter seemed to have been captivated by him on sight, for on the evening of his arrival she waited on him at the table and could not keep her eyes off him. The next day when he was on the porch she went out there with a litre of wine and took advantage of his asking her about some points of interest on the rolling ground below to chat with him.

While they were there a young Italian of her own class went by the house and saw the girl evidently very much interested in the stranger. This man was her lover, and love is very sensitive. He saw danger for him in the American. When he saw her again he reproached her and accused her of being infatuated with one he considered his rival.

"Oh, Andrea," she replied, "how easily you become jealous!"

"Oh, Bianca," was the reply, "how quickly you are caught by a new fancy!"

Worthington remained in the place three days. Then when about to depart Bianca took a wax flower from a vase and offered it to him, telling him that it was a piece of her handiwork. He thanked her and put it in his buttonhole. She watched him descend the roadway, flanked on each side, as is customary in Italy, with high walls, until he was out of sight. But she knew he was on his way northward and must soon emerge where she could see him again. Presently he reappeared, and not far behind him a man was following. Bianca gave a subdued cry. Despite the distance she knew this man to be Andrea.

When Bianca saw her lover again she could tell by his appearance, his actions, that he had committed a crime, and she suspected what that crime was. If Andrea had followed the American and killed him there would be no likelihood of the murder being known, because the country so far as the next town, miles farther on, was uninhabited. She was tempted to charge Andrea with murder in order to see how he would receive the accusation, but she thought better of this and pretended not to suspect him. Gradually he seemed to recover from what haunted him and one day asked Bianca to name the day when she would marry him.

"The day I will marry you, Andrea! I will tell you that when you have brought me something I wish."

"What is that, Bianca?"

"The day the American went away I gave him one of the wax roses in the vase on the mantel there. He put it in his buttonhole, but I watched him go down the road and saw him throw the rose away. I wish to put it back in the vase with the other flowers. Find it and bring it to me. Then I will tell you when I will marry you."

"How can I do that, Bianca?"

"You must or I will not marry you!"

Andrea was much cast down at this and went away, saying that she had given him an impossible task. But the next day she saw him hunting beside the road. This action she received with a curl of the lip. A few days later he came to her with the rose. She turned pale as he handed it to her, for, since she had made it herself and put her mark upon it, she knew that it was the one she had given Worthington. She had laid a trap for Andrea and caught him, but she had not been sure that Andrea was a murderer. She did not believe that the American had thrown away the rose, and she now believed that Andrea had killed him and concealed or buried her gift with the body.

"Now, will you name the day, Bianca?" he asked.

"Come and see me the day after tomorrow."

Andrea was obliged to wait. On the day appointed he went to see Bianca for her answer. He found with her a carabinieri, who, the moment Andrea entered, closed the door. Andrea's teeth chattered.

"You have come," said Bianca, "to have me name the day I will marry you. You will be wed to the gibbet but it is for the judge to name the day. I saw you follow the American and by your guilty appearance believed that you had murdered him. In order to prove this I asked you to bring me the flower I had given him. Yesterday the police made a search of the road over which your victim passed and found his body hidden in a wood beside the road under a heap of logs that had been pulled together for the purpose. The rose had been bent and broken, but repaired."

The carabinieri took Andrea away and the judge pronounced the day for his execution.
